

Picasso Portrait

In weeks 1 and 2, I asked you to have a go at drawing either self-portraits or portraits of your family members in different styles; this week, I would like you to have a go at making a 3D cardboard portrait in the style of Picasso (and sculptor Kimmy Cantrell). When you are finished, ask your parents to post photos of your finished work on the portfolio page on Class Dojo.

Step 1:	Plan your portrait by making some sketches. Consider the different shapes you could use and your colour scheme.
Step 2:	Once you select the sketch you want to create in 3-D, move into cardboard. A mixture of thin, thick and corrugated cardboard works best to create variety. Save cereal boxes and other easy to cut boxes that can easily be broken down. Go BIG! Determine the overall size of the face (maybe use large cereal boxes as they are tall and easy to cut). Sketch out the shape of the face and cut out. Move into drawing out the different facial features (on separate pieces of cardboard) using pencil and then finalizing with felt tips or pen. Cut out these shapes. Use layers of cardboard stacked and glued to create a variety of levels of "pop-outs" to add dimension and to create added interest. Use chalk, oil pastel or crayons to add colour!

Step 3:	Layout and arrange the sculpture before gluing down and play with the arrangement.
Step 4:	Use additional Sharpie or felt-tips to define shapes, spaces and to add more interest!
