

Year 6 Poetry Task

After 3 weeks of staying at home (longer for some of you), I'm sure that there are lots of things that you are missing and looking forward to doing once life gets back to normal. There may be things that you have realised or enjoyed during this period of 'lockdown' that you may wish to continue once all this is over.

This week, I want you to focus on the positives and use your 'wish-list' of ideas to create a poem. The style of the poem is up to you. Below, I have given you some examples. In both I have used a repetitive phrase; in the second, I have used the rhyming pattern AA,BB but your poem doesn't need to rhyme. Carefully consider your ideas and sentiments rather than trying to force words to rhyme.

Have a go at writing your own and ask your parents to share it with me on Class Dojo.

Happy Writing!

When all this is over

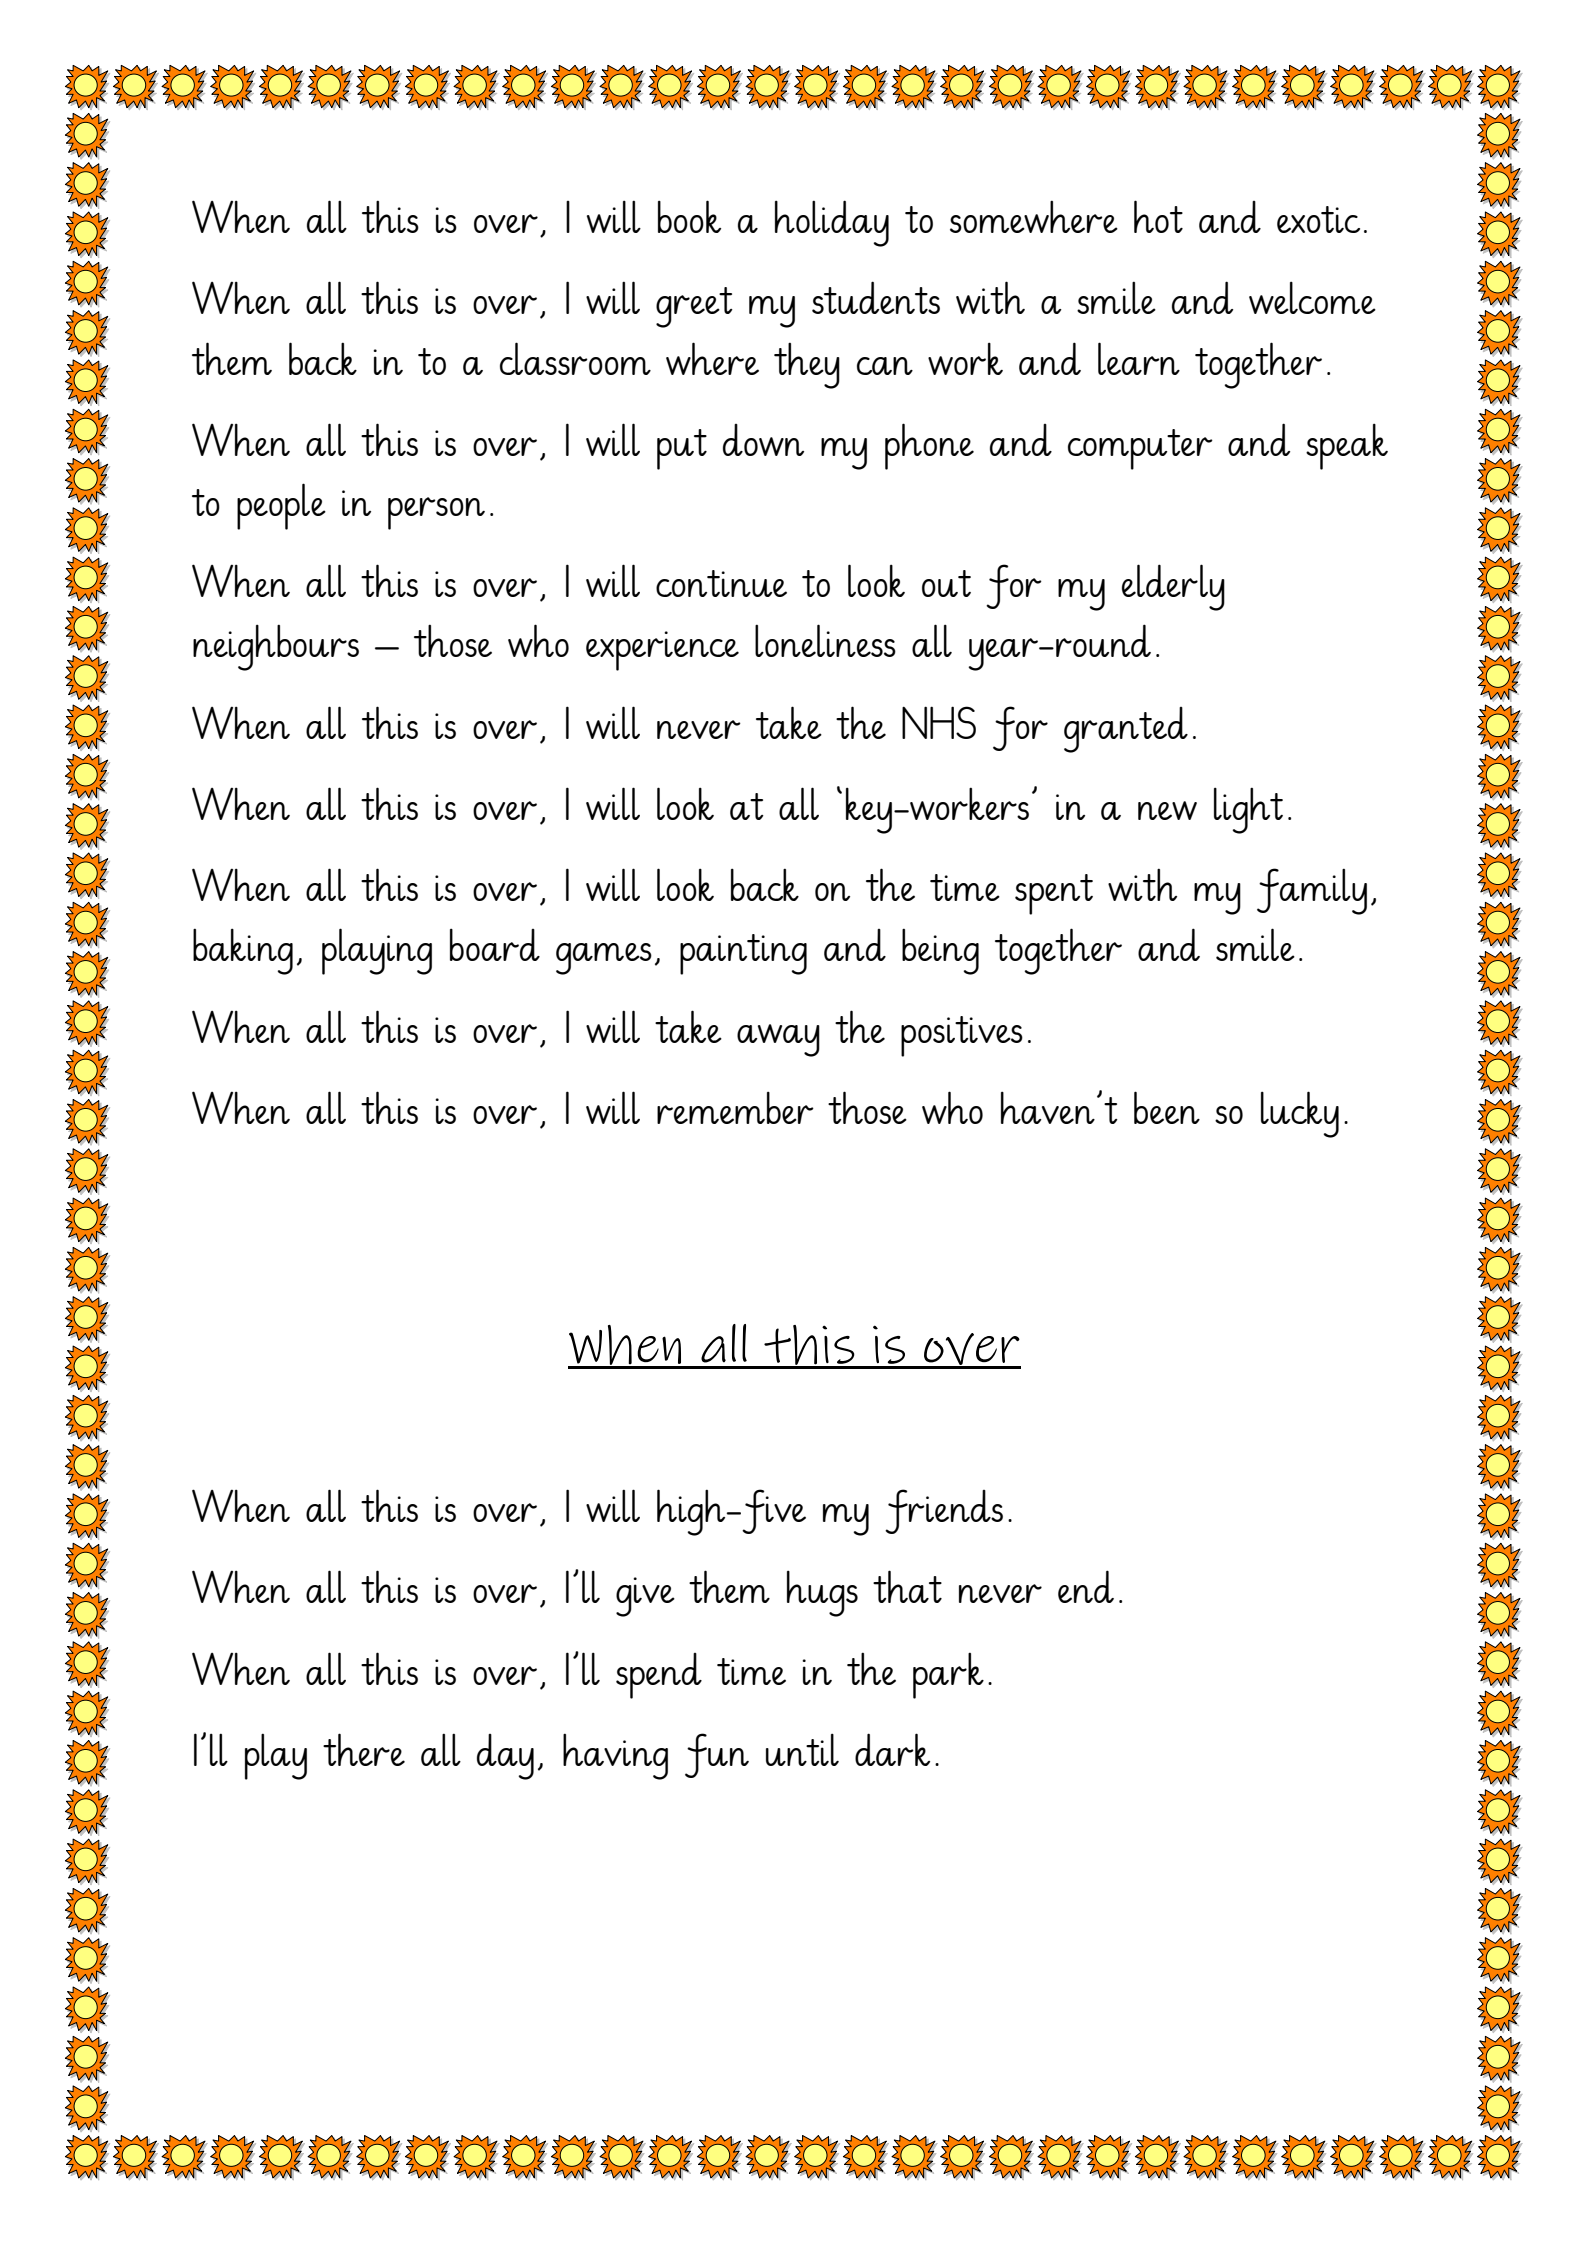

When all this is over, I will hug my parents and hold them close.

When all this is over, I will go the cinema to watch a new release in a large, reclining chair.

When all this is over, I will walk for hours in the beautiful countryside that surrounds our towns.

When all this is over, I will spend time with my friends, playing and having fun.

When all this is over, I will go on a shopping spree, buying all the latest fashions.

When all this is over, I will book a holiday to somewhere hot and exotic.

When all this is over, I will greet my students with a smile and welcome them back in to a classroom where they can work and learn together.

When all this is over, I will put down my phone and computer and speak to people in person.

When all this is over, I will continue to look out for my elderly neighbours – those who experience loneliness all year-round.

When all this is over, I will never take the NHS for granted.

When all this is over, I will look at all 'key-workers' in a new light.

When all this is over, I will look back on the time spent with my family, baking, playing board games, painting and being together and smile.

When all this is over, I will take away the positives.

When all this is over, I will remember those who haven't been so lucky.

When all this is over

When all this is over, I will high-five my friends.

When all this is over, I'll give them hugs that never end.

When all this is over, I'll spend time in the park.

I'll play there all day, having fun until dark.
