

Story starter!

It all began with his mind.
This was where his true power lay.

The slightest idea would burst magnificently into life at the slightest twitch. If he imagined fire, flames would appear. If he imagined happiness, people around him would smile. If he imagined pain...

He had learnt to control his mind over the years, manipulating his incredible powers to serve whatever purpose. Today, though, he was angry. If he imagined anger, chaos would ensue...

Question time!

- ▶ What mood do you think the magician is in?
- ▶ Do you think he is a good or evil character?
- ▶ If you could have magical powers, what would you choose to be able to do?
- ▶ What do the words at the top of the picture say?
- ▶ Who lives inside the house?

Sentence challenge!

Can you write a sentence containing a relative clause?

E.G. The magician, who had incredible powers, strode confidently across the marble floor.

It splits the main clause.

The clause begins with 'who', 'which' or 'with'.

It must supply an extra bit of information to the sentence.

Commas should surround the clause.

Sick sentences!

These sentences are 'sick' and need help to get better. Can you help?

- ▶ The man was wearing a coat and hat and carried a stick.
- ▶ He walked across the floor.

Perfect picture!

Imagine what the man looks like from the front. Draw or describe his appearance.
